IT WAS NOT A GOOD IDEA

Rejected airport would be 'too far from London'

PROPOSALS for an airport to be built near Abingdon have been rejected, after it was determined to be too far from London to be viable.

The Airports Commission, led by Sir Howard Davies, published an interim report on December 17 listing which proposals had made the shortlist.

In the report, the commission stated the reasons why the proposal for an airport near Abingdon, submitted by Bristol-based firm Pleiade Associates, had been rejected.

It read: "Although less housing would be demolished and this was cheaper with a better relative noise performance to some others in the group, this option is at a greater distance from London.

"This proposal would also cause the loss of over 300 hectares of high value agricultural land and would sit on a major floodplain needing significant compensatory storage provision.

"This area has also been earmarked as a site for a future reservoir by Thames Water."

By Adam Flinn
adam@taylornewspapers.co.uk

The proposal was for a four-runway site on land south of Marcham, and also included developments to the A34 and an eight-platform rail station being constructed.

Cllr Sandy Lovatt, leader of Abingdon Town Council, said: "It was never a realistic idea anyway.

"I don't believe it met many of the criteria for an international airport to serve Greater London.

"Three perennial projects keep coming up for this part of the country. One is the airport, then there's the reservoir idea, and the garden city idea for 30,000 houses to go there.

"In some ways, if something happened to it, it would be quite good.

"But I am pleased they haven't decided to put an airport here, that would be horrible."

Cllr Matthew Barber, leader of Vale of White Horse District Council, added: "I never got too excited about the whole thing.

"I always thought it was a rather ridiculous proposal.

"These plans were put in some years back and revitalised by the Airports Commission.

"And if you study the plans I think you can see that it's totally unrealistic.

"The infrastructure that would have been needed to support the airport certainly wouldn't have been in place, and the location wasn't an appropriate size.

"I wasn't particularly surprised that it was rejected.

"And I think the news will be reassuring to residents that live locally."

Pleiade Associates were unavailable for comment.

A34 set for £10m slip road boost

• Cllr Ian Hudspeth welcomes the planned improvements for the Chilton Interchange

THE Department for Transport has allocated £5million of funding from its Local Pinch Point Fund, to be used on improvements on the A34.

North-facing slip roads at the Chilton Interchange will be added, in a bid to improve transport links between Oxford and the Science Vale Enterprise Zone around Harwell.

At the moment the junction does not have access to and from the north, and it is believed that adding the slip roads will reduce traffic in the area.

As well as government funding, the £10million scheme will also be supported with money from the Oxfordshire Local Enterprise Partnership.

Cllr Ian Hudspeth, leader of Oxfordshire County Council, said: "This is great news which demonstrates the government's confidence in our ambitions to improve transport and drive investment and innovation in that area.

"The government's announcement and the support of the Local Enterprise Partnership means that we can now begin work on planning the delivery of the road scheme.

"By adding north-facing slips at Chilton Interchange, we will provide confidence and reliability in the transport network and encourage further business investment in the Enterprise Zone."

Nigel Tipple, chief executive of the Local Enterprise Partnership, added: "We welcome this critical investment to support the Enterprise Zone and wider growth."

It is hoped that the scheme will also help to reduce the use of local roads in the area, as well as alleviate the pressure on the nearby Milton Interchange.

As a result, it is expected to create a direct route between the two Enterprise Zones of Milton Park and Harwell.

The news comes after fresh calls were made by Oxford West and Abingdon MP Nicola Blackwood for a similar scheme at Lodge Hill, which only has slip roads to and from the north.

Consultation extended into the New Year

A CONSULTATION on plans to change the county council's home-to-school transport policy has been extended into the New Year.

Proposals include options to save money by reducing the range of schools to which children would qualify for free transport. However, in order to give people further opportunity to submit their views, the deadline for comments has been extended until January 14.

Oxfordshire County Council Leader Ian Hudspeth said: "There has been huge interest in these proposals and we want to ensure we are giving people as much opportunity as possible to have their say and contribute to the consultation process.

"We don't want anyone to miss out on the chance to comment and from a purely practical perspective, it also gives our officers more time to go through the responses we have already received and present the cabinet with a truly comprehensive picture of public opinion when we come to make a decision."

A final decision is now due to be made at a special cabinet meeting, with a date to be announced in due course.

Anyone who has yet to submit their views should visit www.oxfordshire.gov.uk/htspconsultation

Six arrested in raids after cash robberies

SIX people have been arrested in a series of co-ordinated raids as a result of a number of cash in transit robberies, including one at Natwest in Cowley back in April.

The arrests were made on December 17, as officers carried out warrants at 16 address in Oxford, Lambeth, Croydon, Hillingdon and Uxbridge.

Those arrested are suspected of being members of a gang who planned and committed at least seven cash in transit robberies, including the one on Cowley.

All of the robberies in question took place between October 2012 and November 2013, on security vans in Oxford, Tulse Hill, Hayes and Pinner.

They are also suspected of carrying out a robbery at Lloyds Bank in Stokenchurch on December 9.

Five men and one woman, all in their thirties, were arrested, and are in custody at a west London police station. A quantity of cash has also been recovered.

Man robs bus driver at gunpoint in Rose Hill

POLICE are searching for a man in his twenties who boarded a bus in Rose Hill and pointed a hand gun at the driver, before taking £170.

It took place on December 16 when the offender boarded the green Stagecoach double-decker bus while it was parked at The Oval at around 6.30pm.

The offender pointed a dark-coloured hand gun at the driver and demanded the money. The victim, 25, was not injured during the incident.

Police are looking for a man of mixed race, about 25-years-old, approximately 5ft 9ins and of medium build.

He was wearing a large grey puffed jacket with the hood up and tightened around his face.

"We would urge anyone who was in the area at the time and may have seen something to please contact us."

Anyone with information is asked to contact Det Con Ellis from Oxford police station on 101, or alternatively call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

Christmas job security bonus for MINI staff

HUNDREDS of agency workers at MINI Plant Oxford are set for a more comfortable Christmas after being guaranteed job security beyond 2020.

A deal between BMW and Unite has seen a significant proportion of agency workers at the factory in Cowley become full-time.

The futures of thousands of agency workers across BMW sites in the UK have also been secured at Swindon Pressing, and Hams Hall.

By Jack Johnson
jack@taylornewspapers.co.uk

Seven hundred of these workers were told before Christmas that they were to be made permanent with another 300 expected to hear the good news in the New Year.

Oxford East MP Andrew Smith was delighted to hear the news.

"This welcome BMW announcement is great news for Cowley and the whole community, and a credit to the Unite union who have been pressing for many more agency workers to be given permanent contracts," Mr Smith said.

"It will be great this Christmas for many long-standing agency workers to know they now have the prospect of a permanent contract."

The deal guarantees workers job security beyond 2020 and they will join the company's car scheme, receive paid holidays, sick pay and will be eligible to join the company pension scheme.

Unite and BMW have also agreed to an annual review of the scheme in order to ensure it remains fit for purpose.

Roger Maddison, Unite national secretary, said: "In an uncertain world the best Christmas present for working families is job security.

"We are delighted that 1,000 BMW agency workers are to be made permanent with guaranteed job security beyond 2020.

"It is a prime example of unions and employers working together to make a lasting and positive impact in the workplace.

"The deal is also an indication of the strength of the car industry and the skills of the UK workforce."

Neither Unite or BMW could confirm how many agency workers had been made full-time at the Cowley plant.

Man wanted

A MAN is being sought by police after a burglary in Kidlington, when he attempted to gain entry to a house in Church Street by smashing the bottom pane of glass on the rear door on December 10.

The offender is white, between 45 and 50-years old and around 5ft 9ins tall with greying hair. He fled the scene when he was disturbed by the homeowner at around 3.15pm.

PC Bryn Smith said: "The time of this offence consisted with the end of the school day so there would have been parents and children passing the house."

Tesco gives groups a helping hand

• Representatives from the three organisations are presented with cheques outside the Faringdon branch of Tesco

THREE Faringdon community groups have each received a £500 donation from the town's branch of Tesco, following the store's recent 'Helping Hand' competition.

Faringdon's Rugby Club, Netball Club and Day Centre were chosen to receive the donation, after customers were asked to nominate worthwhile organisations.

Tesco store manager Carl Pettersson said: "We were delighted and overwhelmed with the response to our Helping Hand competition.

"After reading all of the nominations, my team and I selected the three organisations to each receive a share of the £1,500 on offer.

"We are delighted our customers have really got behind this competition and from the nominations it's clear that the rugby club, netball club and day centre all deserve the donation.

"We hope it will make a real difference to the groups."

Rachael Kenyon, president of Faringdon Rugby Club, said: "We are extremely grateful for this donation from Tesco.

"Having recently moved to our new ground at Folly Park, we will be able to put the money towards buying a new set of posts, enabling more children and adults of the community to play rugby."

A different kind of festive donation...

ACCORDING to figures from the NHS, 67 people in the county are waiting for a transplant while 21 residents have died in the last five years due to the shortage of organs.

The stats relate to figures released on December 9 and NHS Blood and Transport wish to highlight them to encourage more people to become donors.

An NHS survey showed that only one in 20 people in England and Wales spending time with family at Christmas will be discussing organ donation.

Anthony Clarkson, acting director of Organ Donation and Transplantation at NHS Blood and Transplant, said: "Don't miss the opportunity to discuss organ donation when you're with your family this Christmas.

"For people in need of an organ, Christmas is a very difficult time so we are urging everybody to talk about organ donation." Visit www.organdonation.nhs.uk

Community ambassador initiative

OXFORDSHIRE Community and Voluntary Action (OCVA) has launched a new county-wide initiative for people to become Community Ambassadors.

The Oxford-based organisation is looking for volunteer Community Ambassadors who will have four key roles.

Ambassadors will support their local community, enable others to volunteer, make sure local groups have access to all OCVA services and build networks locally.

Hannah Fenton, volunteering project officer at OCVA, said: "The Community Ambassador will be an important and valued source of information and advice.

"From home or in a central location in their town, they will help individuals and organisations to access the expertise they need.

"This might be matching people with volunteering opportunities, finding funding sources and giving basic advice, or encouraging more collaboration locally."

The role is for six to eight hours per week and volunteers need to be able to offer a minimum of six months from March 2014.

For more information contact Hannah Fenton on 01865 251946.

Oxford all set to go wild at heart

By Jack Johnson
jack@taylornewspapers.co.uk

A NEW two-year project on three wildlife sites in the city has been announced, bringing communities and people together to explore Oxford's green spaces.

The Wild Oxford project, is led by the Berks, Bucks & Oxon Wildlife Trust (BBOWT) in partnership with the city council.

Wild Oxford will focus on three wildlife sites in the city - Lye Valley in Headington, Rivermead Nature Park in Rose Hill and Chilswell Valley in South Hinksey.

• Andy Gunn at Rivermead Nature Park in Rose Hill

Andy Gunn, the Wild Oxford project manager, said: "During the next two years we will be running events across the city to inspire people of all ages to explore and discover the wild green spaces in Oxford.

"We will be running workshops for people of all abilities so that people can learn traditional conservation skills including coppicing, hedgelaying and scything."

Lye Valley is tucked away behind the Churchill Hospital and is said to contain more than 300 plant species including 20 on the rare plants of Oxfordshire register.

Rivermead Nature Park lies within the busy housing estates at Rose Hill and the Wild Oxford project will work with people to revive the site to take forward practical conservation work.

At Chilswell Valley in South Hinksey, the plan is to clear scrub and renew interpretation signs and boardwalks put up more than 20 years ago.

Neil Clennell, head of conservation & education for Oxfordshire, said: "This is a fascinating opportunity to bring the people of Oxford closer to the unique and historic biodiversity of our city.

"I am delighted that the Wildlife Trust will be working with Oxford City Council and other partners, such as residents' groups and the Natural History Museum, to make this exciting project come alive."

Councillor Mark Lygo, Oxford City Council board member for Sport, Parks and Events, added: "This is an exciting project and I hope that our communities get involved."

The Wild Oxford project is funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund through a grant of £54,800, as well as a grant of £7,100 from the Trust for Oxfordshire's Environment with funds from Grundon Waste Management.

Female inmates 'much more likely to self-harm'

By Adam Flinn
adam@taylornewspapers.co.uk

A STUDY by researchers at the University of Oxford has found that female prisoners are four times more likely to self-harm than men.

Dr Seena Fazel and Professor Keith Hawton examined the prevalence of self-harm in all prisoners in England and Wales between 2004 and 2009, noting 140,000 self-harm incidents involving 26,500 inmates.

The study found that 20 to 24 per cent of female prisoners self-harmed, compared to around five and six per cent of male inmates.

"Repetition rates were striking," said Dr Fazel. "If a female prisoner self-harmed, she would [be likely to] self-harm eight times per year.

"There were 102 women and two male inmates who self-harmed more than 100 times per year.

"While self-harm is a substantial problem across the board, it is a particularly serious issue for women in prison who make up only five per cent of the prison population but account for half of all self-harm incidents.

"Moreover, now we know the extent to which the risk of subsequent suicide in prisoners who self-harm is greater than the general prison population suicide prevention initiatives should be changed to include a focus on prisoners who are self-harming."

The researchers found several factors that increased risk of self-harm - being under 20, being white, being unsentenced or having a life sentence.

Cutting and scratching were the most common methods of self-harm in both sexes, followed by poisoning, overdose or swallowing objects for men and self-strangulation for women.

Self-harm was also found to be a strong risk factor for suicide in prison, particularly among men.

Suicide rates among men in prison who self-harmed was 334 per 100,000, around four times that of the general male prison population at 79 per 100,000.

The study was funded by the Wellcome Trust, the National Institute for Health Research, the National Offender Management Service and the Department of Health.

Nursery open again after £100k boost

A CARTERTON nursery has reopened following a £100,000 investment, meaning it now has brand new facilities and additional places for pre-school children.

The Co-operative Childcare nursery in West Oxfordshire Business Park has been completely refurbished, and is now able to care for 74 people between the ages of three months and five years old.

Improvements include a new kitchen section for the children to get involved with cookery sessions, and a revamped garden area so they can spend more time outside.

A staff training suite has been created, to support colleague learning and development.

It was officially opened by the mayor of Carterton Cllr Lynne Little, and parents and children were invited to take a tour of the new facilities.

Nursery manager Danielle Taylor said: "This investment has allowed us to significantly improve the services we offer to our children. The upgraded facilities mean that we can now provide a more individual learning experience for each child in our care, from their earliest years right through to school age, in supportive and encouraging surroundings."

Hunt on after Faringdon chemical spill

FIRE crews had to be called to a Faringdon church car park on December 14, following a chemical spill outside the building between 8pm and 11pm.

Approximately 25 litres of hydrochloric acid had been spilt from a container onto the car park, attended by fire appliances and specialists support vehicles from Faringdon and Oxford.

They were also joined by a hazardous materials advisor, and the container and spill were quickly cleared up.

Incident commander and station manager Mike Adcock said: "The quick action of members of the public in calling the Fire and Rescue Service enabled us to arrive promptly and effectively deal with the spill.

"Should members of public come across containers or drums with chemicals in, then the best course of action is to leave the chemical and seek further advice."

Police are now searching for a male offender in connection to the incident, who was wearing a grey hooded top at the time.

They are also investigating damage done to a gate at the car park, caused by a grinder, and reports that a white van with blue sign writing on the front left the car park around the time of the incident.

Airman is flying high after award

By Adam Flinn
adam@taylornewspapers.co.uk

A LEADING aircraftman from RAF Benson has been crowned the winner of the new Junior Leader Development Awards.

LAC Matthew Salt, a reservist intelligence analyst representing the Operations Wing won the coveted trophy, as well as £250 of Amazon vouchers.

Each wing and squadron at RAF Benson put forward one candidate for the competition, who were required to create a 10 minute presentation on a topic of their choice to a four-person judging panel.

One of the judges on the panel was RAF Benson's station commander, group captain Nigel Colman, who was pleased with how the competition went.

He said: "These are really exciting awards and a great new initiative at RAF Benson to recognise potential and promote talent across our junior non-commissioned ranks.

"It is never easy standing in front of your peers and superiors to present on a topic, particularly those that are so well-known in the Royal Air Force such as 'air power' and 'leadership'. However, the presentations were professional, engaging, confident and thought-provoking, highlighting the high quality of junior personnel we have here at RAF Benson and making the judging very difficult."

• Matthew Salt (front centre) along with other nominees for the Junior Leader Development Awards

The awards were sponsored by PriDE, whose head of business planning Richard Thornley said: "We are delighted to have sponsored this awards presentation.

"The career development opportunities provided by these types of events are excellent and I was very impressed by the confidence and ability shown by all the presenters.

"It is really challenging to cover such in-depth topics so well in such a short space of time."

Second place in the awards went to senior aircraftman Ashley Woodruff, while third went to senior aircraftman Richard Greasley.

The other nominees included senior aircraftman Robert Lindsay, senior aircraftman (technician) Matthew Zinn, acting corporal Samuel Wheeler and senior aircraftman (technician) Paul Derrick.

Police appeal

POLICE are appealing for witnesses after a handbag was stolen from an occupied house in Davenport Road, Witney, on December 15.

Between 10am and 3pm, offenders opened an unlocked front door and stole the handbag from the hallway, while the occupants were inside the house.

PC Lorna Briggs said: "I would also like to remind residents to make sure their property is secure, both when they go out and when they are at home."

Re-burial

HUNDREDS of skeletal remains were re-buried at Wallingford cemetery on December 18, a decade after they were first found.

Two-hundred-and-eleven of the town's earliest residents were excavated between 2003-04 on what is now the old Waitrose site.

The earliest burials date to the 10th century, soon after the town was founded by King Alfred and the latest to the 14th century.

They were buried in the churchyard of St Martin's - a Saxon church which fell out of use in the 14th century.

Work starts on special school

WORK to build a new special school in Oxford has begun, with the aim of ensuring more young people with learning difficulties can be educated closer to home.

Building work began yesterday on the long-awaited MacIntyre Academy, which will focus on the needs of 25 autistic children aged 11 to 19

By Adam Flinn
adam@taylornewspapers.co.uk

It is due to open in Autumn 2014 and will be run by MacIntyre Academies, with funding being provided by Oxfordshire County Council.

• Brenda Mullen and Cllr Ian Hudspeth

Cllr Melinda Tilley, cabinet member for children, education and families, said: "No child, regardless of their disabilities, should be denied an excellent education that is close to home.

"The new academy will transform the educational experience of some of the county's most vulnerable children, and help bring about the best possible outcomes for them.

"Parents have told me that this type of residential special school in Oxfordshire is long overdue."

Brenda Mullen, chief executive of MacIntyre Academies, said: "The establishment of this academy in Oxford builds on MacIntyre's expertise in the field of special education.

"Our ambition is to continually challenge ourselves to provide the best educational provision for children and young people with autism and learning difficulties."

Janet Johnson, special educational needs manager at the council, added: "We are delighted that MacIntyre Academies will be running the new academy.

"Over recent years MacIntyre has significantly improved the lives of some of the most disabled young people in Oxfordshire."

A ceremony was held yesterday to mark the start of building work, which was attended by representatives from the county council and MacIntyre Academies.

It also marked the start of a £250,000 fundraising appeal by MacIntyre to provide specialist equipment and facilities, to enhance the educational experience of young people.

Councillor's Column

Cllr Bob Price
Leader of Oxford City Council

The squeeze on living is very real

THE Joseph Rowntree Foundation have just published a report on poverty in Britain, showing that more than half of the families who are living on incomes below the official poverty level are actually in work. In other words, they can only find jobs that are very low paid, or part-time (or both).

Their jobs are often very insecure and then they find themselves out of work for periods between jobs. The slight upturn in the economy is improving the position of those at the top of the income ladder, but for those at the bottom , improved pay and prospects remain a mirage. Food banks have become one of the new growth industries in Poverty Britain, with many users having to use these banks for basic supplies and not just for top ups in emergencies.

The squeeze on living standards and the real value of what our incomes can buy was confirmed last week by Britain's leading experts on tax and spending, the Institute of Fiscal Studies. They pointed out that living standards would be lower in 2015 than they were in 2010 when the Coalition government took office. Thanks to the Coalition's failure to generate growth, the output of the economy is still below the level that it reached before the banking crisis hit the western world.

And what does George Osborne have to offer ? More cuts in spending on crucial community budgets - reductions of 2.3 per cent a year up to 2016, increasing to bigger cuts of 3.7 per cent a year up to 2019. Osborne is using the global recession and the banking crisis to permanently cut your services – school transport, youth centres , childrens centres, libraries, theatres and homeless support – in order to give tax cuts to the better off. The people of this country have accepted that there needs to be some spending reductions but they expect Government to combine these with an economic policy that delivers better living standards and decent community services. Instead, the Chancellor is planning for permanent austerity.

And at the same time as the Coalition cut your living standards, they have been throwing money recklessly after their pet Universal Credit project - £41 million wasted because of mistakes, and £91 million just written off. The project is way behind timetable and won't even be completed by 2017. And the system can't even deal with the common situations where people change jobs, earn different amounts per week or couples split up. Incompetent and heartless – these sum up the Coalition at Christmas 2013.

Drivers - stay safe in bad conditions

By Jack Johnson
jack@taylornewspapers.co.uk

• Experts are warning drivers of hazardous road conditions similar to that of last year's floods

ROAD safety experts are sending out a clear message this winter - drive to the weather conditions.

This is in order to help prevent road accidents in hazardous weather.

Icy and wet roads can be hazardous to road users while stopping distances more than double on wet roads as tyre-grip is lost.

In addition, stopping distances are ten times more on an icy road than on a dry one.

Oxfordshire County Council's Fire and Rescue Service's Road Safety manager Mick Clarke said: "Reduced visibility and potentially slippery road surfaces can make winter driving particularly hazardous.

"It is very important that drivers adjust to the driving conditions, whether it is snowing, foggy, icy or wet or a combination of those conditions, so they have enough time to react."

Mr Clarke was also keen to issue advice on how to avoid hazardous conditions.

"Fog lamps should be used if visibility is fewer than 100 metres and sunglasses could also be worn to help counter the glare of winter sunlight," he added.

"It is also important that drivers have prepared their vehicles to be road-safe before they set off.

"Making sure tyres are at the right pressure and ensuring ice is completely cleared from windows and mirrors can help prevent a road accident.

"It is also essential that windows are completely de-misted before a journey starts, so the driver has a clear all-round view of what is going on."

Experts also recommend that motorist keep an ice-scraper, de-icer, a torch, first aid kit and a hazard warning triangle in their vehicles.

Further safety advice is being issued as part of the county council's Ready for Winter campaign and can also be found via 365alive, an initiative designed to reduce incidents through educational and preventative work.

Honoured for community integration

FOUR organisations have been rewarded with Community Integration Awards that will help promote effective opportunities for people across various backgrounds.

Cowley Road Works, Nepalese Community Oxfordshire, Slade and Headington Children's Centre and Green Square Group were rewarded by the High Sheriff of Oxfordshire Prof Graham Upton.

The organisations have been awarded £8,000 and additional mentoring on how they can provide opportunities for more effective and positive relationships across various communities.

Twenty-eight organisations applied for the awards and Prof Upton said: "It was incredibly inspiring to see so many great organisations trying to create change, but a little disconcerting at the same time knowing we could not help all of them and the strength of the applications made choosing the winners extraordinarily hard.

"Oxfordshire is a county of juxtapositions, it has great beauty in its historical architecture but that can mask a lot of different sides of life and discrepancies.

"Oxford is a city of great wealth and education but also has pockets of huge deprivation which has massive implications on health, crime, housing and education."

2014 the year for prospects and opportunity

By James Booker
jamesb@taylornewspapers.co.uk

STRENGTHENING confidence and improving job prospects. That's how Oxfordshire business leaders see the prospects for 2014. The Oxfordshire Guardian asked a number of senior figures in the county's business community for their take on the economic outlook. This from David Knowles Leak, Thames Valley Regional Chairman of the Federation of Small Businesses, summed up the views of many: "Confidence has been in positive territory for a full year, giving economic growth solid foundations moving into 2014. Small firms are creating more jobs and investing in their business and there are encouraging results behind the headline figures."

That confidence is shared by Paul Mabbutt, MD of Jennings, who own and manage a number of business parks and centres in the county: "At Jennings we are quietly optimistic about prospects for 2014, as we are seeing several of our tenant businesses looking to grow again, and can feel that there is much more confidence across many sectors. Broadband and transport are still major concerns for Oxfordshire, but many areas of the economy are starting to thrive again, which will have a positive effect on future growth."

For Lesley Cowley, OBE, Chief Executive of Oxfordshire-based Nominet, the organisation that looks after the UK's '.uk' internet infrastructure, the positivity should translate into new jobs: "2014 will bring nearly a thousand new top-level domains to the internet, an unprecedented level of change. At Nominet, we're going to be hard at work during 2014 to ensure innovation in .uk keeps UK web users and businesses ahead of the curve. The key to success for Nominet in 2014 will be our ability to recruit staff in Oxfordshire. We are planning to add 55 new people to our growing team during the year."

Bob Bradley, Oxfordshire Chamber of Commerce President and Group Chairman of leaders' organisation, MD2MD, adds: "2014 will be the first year for a long time that we begin with a fair degree of confidence that the economy is growing, so it's a good time to invest for growth in our businesses. But at the same time we need to take care. The Eurozone still faces many challenges, the US still has to resolve fully its debt limits, world growth is slowing, and in the UK we haven't yet had to manage with normal interest rates and austerity continues. So I'd counsel businesses to plan optimistically whilst also ensuring they can cope if one of the many challenges we face comes to the fore."

• New energy: solar panelling installed at Monument Park, Chalgrove where owners Jennings see encouraging signs for the economy

One of those planning optimistically – very optimistically if you also ask him about football issues – is Stuart Miller, co-founder & CEO at Grove-based logistics solutions firm, ByBox: "I'm itching with excitement about 2014. You can feel the momentum of growth building across Oxfordshire. Following two great acquisitions in 2013, ByBox is set for a belter of a year. And England are going to win the World Cup."

Business Matters

Guest columnist Iain Nicholson
Wantage Town Team Coordinator

A certain type of shops

"WHY have Wantage decided to get ANOTHER..." This post from a Twitter follower focussed on the arrival of one retail outlet in Wantage, but sparked a much wider debate about the extent to which any town can influence the shops it gets, and the number in any one sector. I replied with two questions: "Should 'a town' have a say in letting decisions? And if so how would it decide?" It's a crucial issue in the debate about the vitality of our towns and the future of the high street. You might get a consensus in very general terms about there being too many of one type of shop, but can (and should) that be drilled down to apply in any individual letting decision? Some urban centres have percentage limits on shop use classes beyond which planners will refuse permission for change of use. But on what basis would 'a town' say it has too many of a particular shop type? If the owner of the business planning the new shop has done their market research and says the new use is viable, who is 'the town' to disagree? And is the number of a particular shop type the only factor? What if one or more of that type in the town already is not that great? Does that change our decision? But even if we agree that 'the town' should have a say, what does 'town' mean? The council, the chamber, the town team, some combination? And how is their decision reached? For now anyway it's a hypothetical discussion because the town has no say. Landlords decide. The best a town can do – as we have done in Wantage by developing a pipeline of would-be new shops through our Flashop pop up shop – is give the landlord some options. This is where the idea of running your town as a business starts, and where comparisons are drawn with shopping centres, where decisions can be made on the tenant mix and the slots each shop type is given. Would that work for towns? And if so, how? Interesting, but not easy!

A plethora of talent at the O2

OXFORD'S O2 Academy has announced its new shows coming up in the first months of 2014, featuring a number of mainstream and indie acts performing live on the stage.

By Adam Flinn
adam@taylornewspapers.co.uk

January sees Los Angeles-based four-piece Warpaint come to Oxford, days after launching their eponymous second album and follow-up to debut record 'The Fool', released in 2010.

Max Raptor return to the county after their appearance at this year's Truck festival, and released their first full album 'Mother's Ruin' back in September.

The music of Johnny Cash is performed at the O2 on February 13, with tribute act CASH and frontman Ben Welburn bringing a range of the man in black's hits to a new audience.

Bristol-born 18-year-old singer Lauren Aquilina is conducting her biggest UK tour to date in February, and comes to Oxford in support of her second EP 'Sinners'.

Foxes, also known as Loui Rose Allen, comes to the O2 ahead of the release of her debut album in March, and is already believed to be a serious contender for the BRITs Critics' Choice Award next year.

New York indie band We Are Scientists, made up of Keith Murray, Chris Cain and Andy Burrows, are back in the UK for a full tour in March, performing hits from past albums and upcoming EP 'Business Casual'.

Maximo Park are back on tour with the release of their fifth studio album 'Too Much Information' next year, playing songs from the latest release as well as their extensive back catalogue.

Singer-songwriter Katy B is in Oxford on March 27, following on from first album 'On a Mission' with new release 'Little Red', featuring the single 'Crying For No Reason'.

Turning a corner for 2014...

By Adam Flinn
adam@taylornewspapers.co.uk

DIDCOT Cornerstone has announced its new shows for the start of 2014, with a range of nationally known names and local acts to entertain audiences up to the spring.

Theatrical comedy Eric and Little Ern arrives in Didcot in January, featuring experienced stage actors Ian Ashpitel and Jonty Stephens, who capture the spirit of Morecambe and Wise themselves.

February begins with a performance of Shakespeare's classic play The Comedy of Errors, also regarded as one of the most farcical, telling the story of two sets of identical twins separated at birth.

Suitcase Stories, a children's production about a suitcase and its tales from journeys across the world, is at the Cornerstone on February 2.

The Reduced Shakespeare Company return to Didcot with a new show, performing the entirety of The Bible using just three actors in this comedic production.

• Iranian comic Omid Djalili performs his two shows on February 19 and 20

• The Reduced Shakespeare Company are back at the Cornerstone on February 8

Irish contemporary folk musician Cara Dillon takes to the stage with the impending release of her fifth studio album, with support from Ellie Williams.

Stand-up comedian Omid Djalili is back on tour following a sell-out season at this year's Edinburgh Festival, performing at the Cornerstone for two nights in February.

Audiences are invited to spend an afternoon with Sunny Ormonde, best known as Lilian from The Archers, as she speaks about her 12 years on the Radio Four show.

Children's rock group Kid Carpet and The Noisy Animals blast off into space on March 2, where a gorilla, a bear, a hedgehog and a badger play games and rock out at a grand dance contest.

Comedienne Lucy Porter comes to Didcot on March 7, who is known for her appearances on Have I Got News For You, Mock the Week and The Weakest Link.

All of the Cornerstone's shows, along with ticket prices and start times, can be found on www.cornerstone-arts.org or by calling 01235 515144.

It's the saloon of choice

BMW'S 5-series needs little introduction. For decades it's been the saloon of choice for the keen driver and more recently the frugally-minded Fleet Manager.

REVIEW: BMW 5-series

By Philip Shoulder

@writeonmotoring

Effectively replacing the Efficient Dynamics model, and offering improved efficiency, this latest 520d sits in the lower section of the range, but the M Sport option adds a sportier look, with bigger 18-inch wheels and stiffened suspension.

The headline news however, is the lower emissions and increased fuel efficiency: BMW claim 62.8 mpg and 117g/km for the cheaper SE-spec car. The bigger wheels on this M-Sport example bring economy down slightly to 57.6 mpg – the trade-off for sharper handling.

On the road the new 5-series certainly lives up to its reputation as a keen driving machine and immediately impresses with its fluid and balanced handling. The superb steering balance and feel embarrasses many rivals too. Ride refinement is now much improved – further helped with the optional Variable Damper Control, which ensures the 5-series composure is maintained, even on bumpy and rutted country roads.

Although precise enough, the six-speed manual box is less enjoyable to use, having a slightly notchy quality to its action, but many buyers will go for the eight-speed ZF automatic option – especially as it returns identical economy figures.

Although the usual four-cylinder diesel clatter seems incongruous with a large BMW, the 2.0 litre motor quietens down once under way and feels strong and punchy, if not outright rapid.

The cabin feels very upmarket - helped by the standard Black Dakota leather - while the BMW Business Navigation system is also now included on all variants. The driving position is very good, as is the comfort and support of the seats. All models get electric adjustment for the seat height and backrest angle, but seat sliding fore and aft is done manually.

Although far from cramped, with plenty of room for four, interior space certainly isn't class-leading and comfort of a third rear passenger will be compromised by the chunky transmission tunnel. Boot space is good though, at 520 litres.

Verdict:

The latest incarnation of the BMW 5-series skillfully blends class-leading driving appeal, prestige and comfort with efficient and powerful engines, strong residual values and low running costs. Little wonder it was recently crowned 'best executive car' by Fleet World magazine earlier this year.

Oxford aiming to keep up impressive campaign

IT'S been quite a start to the season for Oxford United.

At the time of going to print, United were top of League Two, into the third round of the FA Cup and on an eight-match unbeaten run in all competitions.

However, it has been far from easy.

At the beginning of December, manager Chris Wilder was allowed to speak to Portsmouth with regard to their vacant manager's position but fears over his exit were soon quashed when Richie Barker was appointed the new boss at Fratton Park.

United have also been plagued by injuries throughout the campaign.

Deane Smalley has netted seven goals in all competitions but has been in and out of the treatment room, while Jon Meades has been sidelined since pre-season.

Alfie Potter and Andy Whing

By Jack Johnson
jack@taylornewspapers.co.uk

are out until the New Year while captain Jake Wright has also been on the sidelines.

However, this has allowed the likes of Josh Ruffels, Callum O'Dowda, Matt Bevans, David Lynn and Sam Long an opportunity to impress.

United's away record has been impeccable this season.

As the Guardian went to print, Wilder's men had recorded six wins and three draws on the road in the league while their home form shows signs of improvement.

Some would argue the ability to score late goals is a vital component for a successful side and United have not been short of those this year.

Johnny Mullins struck late to earn a win against Bury and he also came up with a last minute equaliser against Wycombe Wanderers.

Late goals from Smalley and Danny Rose saw United come back from 2-0 down to earn a first round replay in the FA Cup against Gateshead with the former scoring a 116th minute penalty to send the U's through at the International Stadium.

Dave Kitson has also come up with two valuable goals in recent weeks. First, an 89th minute equaliser at Fleetwood Town and then a 91st minute winner at home to Dagenham & Redbridge.

James Constable, an ever present fixture in United's attack over the last five years, has not been short of goals this season either.

Beano has netted seven goals helping him to reach over 100 strikes for the club.

This Boxing Day afternoon, United are in action at home to Plymouth Argyle before they host Scunthorpe United at the Kassam Stadium in three days time. Wilder's men begin 2014 in Wales with an away trip to Newport County before they head to Championship side Charlton Athletic in the third round of the FA Cup on January 4.

As a New Year looms, hopes and expectations are certainly high at Oxford United.

Ford looking to continue decent run

MIKE Ford will be hoping his Oxford City side continue their recent good run of form in the Skrill North into the New Year.

As the Guardian went to print, City were on a three-match unbeaten run after wins against Vauxhall Motors and Worcester City and a 1-1 draw at home to Workington.

However, results have not always been positive for City this year.

After a decent pre-season, City recorded their first league win of the campaign on October 5 after a run of five defeats and four draws.

However, since the win over Stalybridge Celtic at the beginning of October, Ford's men have taken 12 points from the last eight games.

This has helped them move up the table towards the middle of the pack.

This afternoon, City welcome Gloucester City to Court Place Farm.

Pepperell hopes to build on good year

ABINGDON golfer Eddie Pepperell may have already started his 2014 season but the last 12 months have been pretty good for the 22-year-old.

Pepperell made his debut on the European Tour in December 2012 and qualified for his first major in the form of the US Open this year.

His best results were a sixth-placed finish at the BMW PGA Championship at Wentworth and an eighth place at the Open de Espana.

Pepperell has been in action twice already in the new season but missed the cut on both occasions.

He carded two-over-par across two rounds in the South African Open Championship in Ekurhuleni and one-over-par in the Alfred Dunhill Championship at the beginning of December.

A season to forget for Williams

AFTER the joy of winning their first race in eight years last year, Williams had a season to forget in 2013 as they managed to score just five points from 19 races.

Valtteri Bottas' eighth-place finish in the USA was as good as it got for the Grove-based team, while Pastor Maldonado picked up his only point at July's Hungarian Grand Prix.

The team struggled with their exhaust configuration throughout the year and Bottas' impressive performance in America only came after this was removed.

Even the Finn's spectacular third-place in the wet qualifying session for Canada failed to yield any points, and Maldonado's growing discontent led to him leaving the team, to be replaced by Felipe Massa for 2014.

Meanwhile, Enstone-based Lotus won the first race of the season in Australia with Kimi Räikkönen, but were unable to mount a serious championship challenge.

Romain Grosjean had a tough first half of the year, but ended on a good run of form as he made the podium in four of the last six races.

Räikkönen leaves Lotus to rejoin Ferrari next year, and will be replaced by outgoing Williams driver Maldonado.

At the back, Banbury-based Marussia beat Leafield-based Caterham to 10th in the constructors' standings for the first time in the team's history.

• Valtteri Bottas got the team's best result of eighth at the Circuit of the Americas in November (Picture courtesy of Williams F1)

Debut season a triumph for Bradley Smith

BRADLEY Smith enjoyed a successful rookie season in the premier class of motorcycle racing this year, finishing 10th in MotoGP.

The 23-year-old recorded 13 top-10 finishes aboard the Tech 3, racking up 116 points - more than any other British rookie in the history of the premier class.

Smith went on to finish second in the end of season test in Valencia and picked up the Sportsman of the Year award at the Oxfordshire Sports Awards earlier this month.

The Oxford-born rider will have a new teammate next year with fellow Brit Cal Crutchlow departing for Ducati and Moto2 world champion Pol Espargaro filling the void.

Next year's provisional calender has been announced with the first race on March 23 in Qatar and the final round on November 9 in Valencia. The British round at Silverstone will be held on August 31 while Argentina and Brazil have been added to the calender.

Late surge not enough

JASON Plato put in a late season charge for the British Touring Car Championship title this year, but ultimately fell short after a number of non-scores.

Plato won eight races – more than any other driver – in 2013, but a difficult mid-season where he didn't make the podium for seven consecutive races cost him dearly.

The season had started off in the best possible way for Plato as he won the opening two races, followed by a run of strong points-scoring finishes.

A puncture cost Plato a win at Thruxton, but was followed by two wins in the first two races at Oulton Park.

However this marked the start of his season's downturn, as a wrong tyre-call at Croft and an engine problem at Snetterton cost the Oxford-based driver two more possible wins.

Plato found himself fifth in the standings with two rounds remaining, 62 points adrift, but promptly won two of the three races at Silverstone to keep himself in the running for the title.

He won the first two races at the season finale at Brands Hatch to move up to second, but a disappointing final race, finishing 10th, marked the end of his fightback.

Plato ended the season third with 380 points, 16 behind eventual BTCC champion Andrew Jordan.

The main highlights of 2013

JANUARY

Deta Hedman is knocked out of the BDO World Championships in the quarter-finals.

London Welsh are eliminated from the Amlin Challenge Cup.

FEBRUARY

Felipe Barcelos hits four goals as Oxford City romp to a 6-2 win over Hinckley.

PAIR FINDING THEIR FORM

Concannon praises frontmen ahead of side's big local derby

By Jack Johnson
jack@taylornewspapers.co.uk

IAN Concannon has praised the form of John Mills and Ben Whitehead as Didcot Town prepare for a local derby in Division One South & West this afternoon against North Leigh.

Mills and Whitehead have scored four goals between them in the absence of Pablo Haysham who was Diddy's top scorer at the time of the Guardian going to print.

Haysham is currently serving a seven-match ban for his dismissals against Bridgwater Town and Merthyr Town.

The frontman is set to return to action on New Year's Day when the Railwaymen make the short trip down the A34 to take on Thatcham Town.

However, Concannon and fellow joint manager Jamie Heapy may find it hard to separate the partnership that Whitehead, who joined from Swindon Supermarine in November, has formed with Mills.

At the time of print, Mills had netted seven times and Whitehead, who can also play on the left-hand side of midfield, has five goals to his name.

Concannon, who is no stranger to scoring goals himself, said: "Ben has got five goals since joining from Supermarine and he has done well.

"He asked about the opportunity to play up front when Pablo was suspended and he has scored a couple of goals.

"Millsy is a clever footballer and if you give him the chances he will score goals.

"When your forwards are scoring it is always reassuring and that is what they are doing at the moment."

In the Hellenic Premier Division, there are two intriguing Boxing Day matches this afternoon.

Wantage Town are away at Flackwell Heath, while there is a derby in Abingdon as Andy Zoldan's United host Paul Davis' Town at the Northcourt.

As the Guardian went to print, United and Town were at the bottom of the table but Zoldan's men were six points better off and closing in on 18th placed Newbury.

In two days time, Didcot are in action at Cinderford Town, Wantage travel to Bracknell Town, Abingdon United take on Highmoor Ibis and Abingdon Town welcome Oxford City Nomads to Culham Road.
